“ My deepest sympathies to the family and friends of Daniel. I too, did not know Daniel, but I have deep admiration for a family that chooses to list the cause of his untimely passing.

Rest assured that Daniel's legacy, along with your forthright, frank wording of his obituary will bring forth a discussion. A discussion which will help a family guide a loved one out of the darkness of addiction and into hope and recovery.

“ Although I did not personally know Danny, my own children did. Over the years I heard many good things about Danny and I know what a good person he was. My sincerest condolences go out to your entire family at this most difficult time, and I hope you can find some comfort and peace in Danny's passing.

Peace and love to you all,
Ed Radder

“ I saw your son's obituary this morning in the Buffalo News. I was very saddened by it and I offer you my heartfelt condolences. I didn't know Daniel, and don't know his family. One of my my main reasons for reaching out is that I respect you and thank you for the very brave decision to list the reason for his death.

I read the newspaper daily and am aware of the terrible heroin problem we have here as well as throughout the US. I read with sadness that we lost seven people in one day to heroin. As a mother of three boys, two of them teenagers, I try and keep the dialogue open and ongoing as it pertains to drugs. No one is immune. I do believe that by listing the cause of death as opposed to died suddenly, allows readers to put a real person, a face, a name to these horrible deaths. By doing this, I believe we will change our heroin problem - even if slowly. Suddenly, it becomes identifiable. Again, I am saddened for the tragic loss of your beautiful boy. But, I am grateful that you bravely put a face to this terrible tragedy.

*God Bless your family.
